

Vulcano

Intensive efforts in research and development are shown in the product innovation which is mafi Vulcano. These thermally treated floors offer a real alternative to tropical timber thanks to their appearance and dark tones - and that with only local wood types.

The thermal treatment of the wood is done in it's own drying and thermal chambers completely without the use of any chemical additives, purely done with heat, wind and water. Thanks to a specific process innovation, the wood dries quicker and with a better quality and because of this improved drying process uses less energy.

Aside from the darker, tropical looking colouring the swelling and shrinkage behaviour of the wood is reduced. This in turn leads to higher resistance to mold and other problems.
